The largs crowd at the Washington Operahouse Friday night last was more than delighted with the splendid presentation of Lymau H. Howe's Moving Pictures. That this sxhlbition has a strong hold on Maysville peopls is evideaced by the fact that large audieuces have sesu the pictures on three separate occasions hers withlu the past teu months, and that the Managers have hooked a returu date sometime during the week of Fsbruary 14th next. Mr. Howe's change of program at each exhibition is just as he promises, and his splaudid subjects afford satertainment to young aud old alike. If the expressions of the muchly-pleased audience of Friday night count for anything, on his return Mr. Howe will have a crowed house to see his show.

It was a Democrat, no doubt, who wrote to The New York World, suggesting that the collection of all the burnt matches for kindling

Two Kinds of Economy.

would prove a wise economy in this wasteful age. There once was an old adage about seeing a pin and picking it up, and the boys of half a century ago were advised to save all the pieces of string they found for kites and tops. Those old economic saws were all right in their day, for pins and strings were not as cheap then as now. The man who would go about picking up pins or collecting burnt matches for kindling would possibly earn 5 cents a day and find it very unprofitable employment.

Economy is not to be despised, but there always has been two kinds of economy, one of miserly saving and the other of economic and wise expenditures of one's talents. The Scriptures condemned the servant who saved his talent without putting it to use and commended the servant who invested his and multiplied it tenfold.

The criticisms of Republican extravagance by the Democratic orators are on a par with those of the man who lectured the people on not saving burnt matches. Economy is a watchword with the Democratic party, and for forty years it has been promising to economize in expenditures if entrusted with power. They tried it twelve years ago and the result was not a happy one. They expended less, but it was more than their income. Their economies compelled the people to pick up matches or any other old thing and patronize the public soup kitchens. The Cleveland Administration expended more than its income every year, and sold bonds to secure money to pay the ordi-

The Republican party has not followed that economic policy. It has not despised burnt matches, but is has not had the people to pick them up, because it has given them more profitable employment: It has followed business principles and encouraged the earning of more money that more might be spent for the comforts and even the luxuries of life. The Republican party has not looked upon the workingman as one who should be compelled to drudge and slave and save by picking up pins and collecting burnt matches. It has tried to so conduct the business of the Government as to encourage enterprise as well as economy and create work and wages that would enable the people to live in comfort. It has been successful enough to keep wages on the increase and THE..... ever gaining on the cost of living. The policy WELL-INFORMED.... of Protection has shut out the pin-picking and burnt-match-collecting labor of Europe and enabled our workingmen to give their attention to better things. It is the better kind of econ-

The last Cleveland Administration was good example of Democratic economy, and in four years increased the interest bearing debt from $585,000,000—where Harrison left it to $847,000,000, or more than $262,000,000. This was in four years of peace.

The McKinley Administration had to deal with a foreign war and the insular questions which followed that war, but it only increased the interest-bearing debt $198,000,000, and the Roosevelt Administration has made a reduction of $131,500,000, even with the increased cost of the Army and Navy. This is the kind of economy which is in harmony with business methods.
